Agenda

1. Welcome and Introductions      Diane Hardison, Chair
2. ITRC 1,4-Dioxane Guidance      Kirsten “Kitty” Hiortdahl, NCDEQ
                                                            Bonani Langan, Wood
3. Update on Legislative Actions    Preston Howard, NCMA
4. Future Topics                          Diane Hardison

Kirsten Hiortdahl, Environmental Engineer with NCDEQ’s Superfund Section will talk about a current initiative to develop national regulatory guidance for the use of 1,4-Dioxane. Kirsten serves on the Interstate Technology and Regulatory Council (ITRC) and is lead for the 1,4-Dioxane Team. She will provide a review of this project and explain how NCMA members can be included in the development process. The ITRC wants to understand the use of 1,4-Dioxane and better represent industrial perspectives in the upcoming regulatory guidance document.

Bonani Langan (Wood Environment & Infrastructure Solutions, NCMA Business Partner) serves on the ITRC 1,4-Dioxane team and has been active with the NCMA ad hoc emerging contaminants committee. Bonani will be on hand for the discussion with Kirsten.

ITRC is a national coalition led by state agencies and managed by the Environmental Council of States (ECOS). ECOS is the national nonprofit association of state and territorial environmental agency leaders funded by member dues, federal funding through EPA, and private sources.
